PREFACE

The present volume of the Catalogue of the Arabic and Persian Manuscripts in the Oriental Public Library, Bankipore, deals with the Arabic Majmū'as contained in the collection of the Library. It is the first volume on the manuscripts of collections of treatises on various subjects by different authors joined together in one volume.

This volume, which was originally undertaken by late Maulavi 'Abdu'l Hamid, a former cataloguer, was finally revised by Maulavi Mu'inu'd Dīn Nadwi, the present cataloguer, under the guidance of Dr. A. M. M. 'Ali Husain, M.A., Ph.D. (London), Professor of Arabic and Persian, Patna College.

This volume contains notices of 528 treatises of varying sizes comprised in seventeen volumes (Nos. 2711-2727) of Manuscripts. Although the work on collections of treatises on miscellaneous subjects was more difficult and exacting than that on individual independent works, the writer had the advantage of being in a position to make use of Brockelmann's Supplement to his "Geschichte der Arabischen Litteratur" and other recent publications not available to the compilers of the previous volumes. I think it will be found that the characteristic high level of scholarship of the previous volumes has, at least, been maintained, if not excelled, in the present one. Besides, the Table of Contents given at the beginning and the two indexes to the titles and the authors respectively of the treatises noticed in the volume will be hailed by the scholars as welcome additions.

Among the old and valuable manuscripts in this volume the following deserve special mention:—

No. 2711(1). A copy of al-Adab fi al-Harb, a rare work on archery by al-Husain ibn 'Abdu'llah, written in the 6th century A.H.

No. 2711(2). An old copy of al-Qirtas(?), a very concise treatise on archery, expounding briefly its objects and most important principles by the author of the preceding work, probably written in the 6th century A.H.

No. 2711(3). A copy of al-Ghāyah(?) fī 'Ilm ar-Ramy(?), another useful manual on archery by the same author written in the same hand.

Unfortunately, the periods to which these two teachers of the author belonged are not known. However, the following passage on fol. 9b in which the author says that he narrated a Hadith on the subject from 'Abd 'Umar (d. اعلام الأريب بحدوث بدعة المحاريب

I'LAM AL-ARIB BI HUDUS BID'AT AL-MAHARIB

A treatise in which it is emphasized that the practice of erection of Mihrab in the mosque is an innovation in Islam and it is therefore unlawful. Mihrab is a niche constructed in the centre of the wall of a mosque, which marks the direction of the Ka'bah and in front of which the Imam takes his position when he leads the congregation in prayer. The author in the beginning informs us that in the time of the Prophet as well as that of the first four Khalifas the practice of erection of Mihrab was not in vogue. However, it is apparent from historical works that it was introduced about the end of the first century A.H. Al-Walid (86-96/705-715) one of the Umayyad Caliphs is the first man under whose orders the Mihrab was built in the mosque. Thomas Patrick Hughes in his 'Dictionary of Islam', p. 348, remarks that it seems probable that the Mihrab borrowed the idea of Mihrab from the Christians, since the niche is commonly built in their sacred buildings. But there is no historical evidence in support of this view.

It is an abridgment of Al-Inṣāf fī Tamyīz al-Awqāf, a work of as-Suyūṭī on Waqf (endowment). For a copy of the same see Berlin, No. 4805. The name of the author of the present abridgment is not given in the body of the MS. A note on the title-page tells us that it is a compilation of Jalāluddīn as-Suyūṭī جلال الدين السيوطي. See No. 2770 above. However, we believe that the statement contained in this note is correct, since our author in the following passage in the preface says that he abridged the present treatise from his own work, viz. Al-Inṣāf fī Tamyīz al-Awqāf, which is undoubtedly the composition of as-Suyūṭī:—

RISĀLAT FĪ AL-JABR BAIN AS-SALĀTAIN.

A treatise containing a Fatwa on the subject of [illegible] (the performance of two prayers at a time on the occasion of travel). The subject was referred to the author for opinion [illegible] according to the Hanafi school [illegible]. According to the Hanafi school it is invalid, but it is valid according to the Maliki, the Shafi'i and the Hanbali schools. The author, being a member of the Hanafi school, allowed the [illegible] (a follower of the Hanafi school) to do so on the ground that it was valid for a Hanafi to follow the view of any of the three schools in cases like this. Hence, the Fatwa is of great value for the student of Hanafi law.

[illegible]

Scribe: [illegible]

A note at the end, in the same hand, reads [illegible] which shows that the present copy was compared with an autograph copy.

It is a peculiar coincidence that three works, viz. this one and Nos. [illegible], the copies of which have been transcribed by the same scribe from autograph copies, were finished together at [illegible] in 1054 A.H. [illegible].

The following note on the title in the scribe's own hand indicates that the author was his master's master:—

[illegible]

[illegible]

The title-page also contains a list of the author's compositions numbering about seventy. Another note (similar to that recorded in No. [illegible]) indicates that the scribe transcribed the present MS. for his own collection.
